kalabi Kalabi - bio

Kalabi has been producing music of one kind or another for the past fifteen years, starting out in garage bands performing covers of punk and rock songs, he quickly moved onto to writing his own rowdy tunes with his band mates. From here, Kalabi played with a number of indie, rock, metal and experimental bands before sitting down in front of a computer and starting to mess around with samples. Kalabi mixes live instruments with synths and programmed beats to create chilled out dubby tunes, and occasionally more up-tempo trip hop beats. He also makes short films and music promo videos, and is currently working on a commission for Might Fat Records.
